

Developing Community-Based Economic Re-Engagement Strategies (A 2-way video program)

Wednesday, March 25, 2009
8:30a.m. – 11:00 a.m. C.S.T.

Purdue Extension, LaPorte County Office
2358 N. U.S. 35, LaPorte, IN
219-324-9407

Workshop Leaders:

Ed Morrison, Economic Policy Advisor - Purdue University
Scott Hutcheson, Community Economic Development Strategist – Purdue University

Who Should Attend:

Representatives from workforce development, economic development, business-support organizations, community foundations, higher education, K-12, local government officials, and others interested in helping our communities support local businesses and residents affected by these difficult economic times.

Impact

This workshop will help community leaders develop new strategies and create civic networks to help troubled businesses develop new strategic directions and assist workers to navigate their choices of a new job in their field, get the skills they need for work in another career path, or set out on their own to pursue an entrepreneurial venture. This facilitated session will provide hands-on tools to develop these and other community-based approaches. More information about re-employment strategies is available at www.re-employment.net.
